DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by WO 99/37720.

WO 99/37720 teaches providing an antisoiling hardcoat on an information display element, which protects the screen of the display, where a transparent substrate is coated with a ceramer coating comprising inorganic oxide particles and a polymerizable binder, then cured to form a durable (hard) coating, then atop this coating, an antisoiling coating comprising a perfluoropolyether is applied and cured, and then an adhesive coating is applied to the opposite surface of the substrate, wherein the perfluoropolyether material meets the requirements of Claims 3 and 6 (Pg. 1, lines 5-12; Pg. 5, lines 13-25; Pg. 6, lines 22-28; Pg. 7, line 16-Pg. 9, line 12; Pg. 10, line 20-Pg. 11, line 27). Although WO 99/37720 teaches applying an antireflective coating between the hard coat and the antisoiling layer, the claims are open to such interpretation. The claims do not exclude the application of another coating being applied between the hard coat and antisoiling layer. Therefore, WO 99/37720 anticipates Claims 1-6.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 7-13 are allowed.

Art Unit: 1762

4. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: None of the prior art cited or reviewed by the examiner teaches or fairly suggests the claimed method of making the screen protectors by forming the coated substrate into stacked sheets and cutting the sheets to fit the display screen (Claim 7) or forming the roughened screen protector by applying the ceramer coating to the substrate by contacting the ceramer coating and substrate at a nip of a roller and the substrate (Claim 9). There is not suggestion in WO 99/37720 to stack the coated sheets and cut the stack to fit the display size or applying the ceramer coating at the nip of a roughened roller and the substrate. Therefore, it is the examiner's position that Claims 7-13 are allowable.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Murakami and Arney et al. are cited as prior art of interest.

Murakami teaches an antireflective plastic sheet to be applied to a portable display device.

Arney et al. teaches forming an antireflective coating on substrate by applying a ceramer coating comprising inorganic oxide particles and a polymerizable binder and then curing.
